

September 21-23, 2020, Milan:

Italy: New date Myplant & Garden announced

Last week, a couple of days before the show was planned to kick off, the organization of Myplant and Garden decided to react for the well-being of everyone in regards to the coronavirus diffusion in Italy and postponed the event to September 2020. Now, the exact dates have been announced. It will be held from Monday 21 to Wednesday 23 September 2020 in Fiera Milano Rho

"It is back together with those who have made it bigger and better, together with companies, with the market, and with the actors in the industry that do not stop when there is an obstacle", the organisation says in a press release.

"Considering the current situation and the provisions enacted in order to contrast COVID-19, the Organisation reserves the right to reconsider/annul the programming of the event if further ministerial dispositions will be published and/or also according to the judgement of interested parties."

"We will be all together again in September 2020, as usual, because the actors in the green industry can overcome also this challenge, and a strong signal to the whole country and to the world can be given. We will work together for a great sixth edition of Myplant."